Dear Daniel Anderson,

Editor, Universal Journal of Educational Research

We thank you for your email and the revised paper. We have checked the revised paper and found it improved. The revised paper does not have any serious issues, but there are a few minor areas that we would like to have addressed for it to be published. We have attached these comments in the document. Please check them carefully and make the necessary changes. Once we receive the final revised version, we will publish your article in the next issue of the journal.

Best regards,

Evaluation Report

General Comments

Reading this manuscript, I can say that this manuscript is a result of hard working times to apply and analyze, but it has many problems to be a good article. First of all, the introduction part must be enhanced regarding to learn which studies were done previous and what they found. Unfortunately, introduction part seems week. Second, the methods chapter is not easily understandable to get clear information about what you do. I cannot see any detail about sample, procedure, preparing of survey questions. As a reader, I would like to see more detail about them. This part should be enhanced. The results chapter seems good. It has details of findings. And finally, the discussion and conclusions part answers only research questions, because comparing or supporting with the previous studies is not enough in this part. On the other hand, alternative interpretations of the data have not been considered. As a conclusion, discussions and conclusions parts are very week and have to be enhanced. Conclusion part should be rewritten. The lack of comparing or supporting with the literature refers to a problem related to persuading the readers about necessity of doing this study. This study needs to be re-organized and to be enhanced. Finally, there are a variety of academic writing problems throughout the text.

Advantage & Disadvantage

The subject of the research and the work done is really valuable and original. However, the research process is not well managed and the reporting process is not well organized. The spelling is also not academic and contains many mistakes.

How to improve

The article must be rewritten, taking into account the current literature. And then it could be considered again for evaluation. I think it is not possible to improve the article with this condition.
